School of Education (Physical Education Teachers College)

School of Education (Physical Education Teachers College) is the first school established under the University, which can be traced back to the physical education specialty created by Beijing Normal University in 1917. It was one of the earliest physical education departments established in modern China. In 1952, the Department of Physical Education and Health of Beijing Normal University was transferred to the Central Physical Education Institute (now Beijing Sport University) that was still under construction at the time. These students became the first group of students in the discipline of physical education after our University was established in 1953. The Department of Sports was renamed as the College of Education at the beginning of 1955, as the Department of Physical Education in 1990, as the Institute of Education in 2002, and eventually as the School of Education (Physical Education Teachers College) in 2019, encapsulating the glorious history of the development of sports higher education in China. The School has four teaching and research departments and two research centers: pedagogical teaching and research department, physical education teaching and research department, sports history teaching and research department, early childhood physical education teaching and research department, China Disabled Sports Research Center, and International and Comparative Physical Education Research Center.

The School offers two bachelor programs, physical education and pedagogy. Physical education program has maintained its top position in the ranking of physical education majors of 286 Chinese universities in 2017-2018. In 2008, in the program of physical education was rated as a "Beijing Program" by Beijing education authorities and later approved by the Ministry of Education as a "national Program."

Since establishment, the School of Education (Physical Education Teachers College) has trained more than 20,000 outstanding sports talents for the country. Many of them have become the backbone of sports departments in China's "985 Project" and "211 Project" elite universities; in addition, there are more graduates of our School who are active in the field of elementary education in China and who have join sports departments to become the backbone of the development of basic education and sports in China.
